An AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT of the Battle fought between the Army under his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland and the Rebels, on Drummoſſie Muir near Culloden, on the 16th April 1746.

Edinburgh, April 23.

BY Letters from Inverneſs of the 19th, which arrived this Morning by one of the King's Meſſengers, we have the Confirmation of the glorious Victory obtained upon Wedneſday the 16th, by the Army under the Command of his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, over the Army of the Rebels, on the Moor called Drummoſſie, near to Culloden, two Miles from Inverneſs, with the following Particulars.

"His Royal Highneſs with the Army encamped the 15th at Nairn, and the Rebels hoping to ſurpriſe him there, marched within Three Miles of our Camp; but upon Intelligence that our Drums were beating, in order to march to attack them, they retired to the Ground they had choſen to engage us in, which was a Moor near to the Houſe of Culloden. His Royal Highneſs marched thither the 16th, and came up with the Rebels about one Afternoon. The Action begun by the Fire of the Rebels Cannon, which ours anſwered with Succeſs, and very ſoon brought their firſt Line, conſiſting altogether of their Clans, in a great Hurry to attack us. Their Right-wing out-fronted our Left, which fell in a little; but our Men fairly beat them back with their Bayonets, and made a great Slaughter of them. They made the ſame Movement on their Left; but the Regiments on our Right, where his Royal Highneſs was, did not take their Firelocks from their Shoulders, tho' the Rebels came down firing their Piſtols, and brandiſhing their Swords, three times, within leſs than one hundred Yards, yet they dared not to attack us, but went off without attempting any Thing. The Rebels looked upon themſelves as quite covered on their Right-wing by the Walls of a Park; but the Generals Hawley and Bland, with that Part of our Cavalry that was poſted on our Left, got through theſe Walls, by the Aſſiſtance of the Campbells, who made ſeveral Openings and attacked their Right[illegible]ter; and at t[illegible] Right attack[illegible] ry met in t[illegible] Half an [illegible] they w[illegible] to p[illegible] with great Execution. The Rebel Priſoners ſay, they loſt on the Field and in the Purſuit above 4000 Men. We have 222 French, and 326 Rebels Priſoners, beſides Officers. We took 12 Cannon, a great Deal of Ammunition, and about 2400 Firelocks. Our Loſs was 50 Officers and Soldiers killed, and 250 wounded. Lord Kilmarnock and ſome other Officers of Note are taken, and many of the Highland Chiefs are killed. This great Event, under God, is entirely the Work of his Royal Highneſs. The Diſpoſition, and ordering the Execution of it was all his own. To Day Lord Cromarty and his Son, with Ten other Officers, and 150 Men, taken by the Sutherland Militia, were brought into Inverneſs aboard the Hound Sloop.

And by private Letters of the ſame Date, but wrote after making up the reſpective Liſts mentioned below, it appears that more Priſoners were hourly brought in. In one of which it is ſaid, 'Juſt now 30 'of Fitz-James's Horſe, and 30 of Lord John Drum-'mond's, with Five French Officers, have come and 'ſurrendered themſelves, ſo that now 50 French 'Officers have ſurrendered; 39 Rebels are juſt 'brought in from different Places.'

Extract of a Letter from an Officer in the Army to his Friend at Edinburgh, dated the 18*th.*

HIS Royal Highneſs the Duke, by the Bleſſing of the Almighty, has beaten the Rebels upon the Muir of Culloden, and got the cheapeſt Victory that perhaps has ever been known, tho' by his expoſing his own valuable Perſon too much, it had often like to coſt us too dear; a Battery of their Cannon bore directly upon the Place where he ſtood; it did little Execution, for a particular Providence guards him, and he truſts to it; ſeveral Shots nearly miſſed him, and one Shot took off two Men exactly before him. The Action begun at one o'Clock, and laſted but a ſhort Space in any Kind of Warmth; they ſhifted away to our Left, but with all the braveſt of their Men they could not make any Hand of one ſingle Regiment, which was Barrel's; their great Effort was there, but it was vain, they could not penetrate, and lay in Heaps. In a Word we have not loſt 100 Men, and the Re[illegible] have loſt between 3500 and 4000. We took [illegible]ir Cannon which were Twelve, their Ammu-[illegible]000 Stand of Arms, Magazines of Beef [illegible]meal, &c. And

And a Letter of the ſame Date from another Officer makes the following Obſervations on that memorable Action.

"I can ſcarce think they will ever venture to look our People in the Face again, after the Reception they met with: They were above 9000 ſtrong, chos'd their Ground, and had likewiſe a rainy Day to favour their Broad Swords, but all would not do; and what is ſtill more, our Front-line only engaged, which ſhows you what our People can do. They are now thoroughly convinced, that Highlanders and Broad Swords ſignify little againſt us. Indeed they had the warmeſt Fire given them that I ever ſaw for the Time it laſted, and this was the third Field-battle I have been in, in leſs than a Twelvemonth.

All Accounts agree in aſcribing the Succeſs of this glorious Engagement, under God, wholly to the Conduct and Valour of his Royal Highneſs the Duke, who, as ſome of the Letters expreſs it, "Behaved as if he had been inſpired, conſtantly riding up and down giving his own Orders." And what Thanks do we not owe to Almighty God for giving us ſo great a Deliverance, and preſerving that glorious young Hero, whom he made the Inſtrument of delivering us."

We have alſo Advice by other private Letters, that the following Ladies are made Priſoners, viz. old Lady MacIntoſh, Lady MacIntoſh younger, Lady Ogilvy, the Lady of Sir James Kinloch of Nevy, and Lady Gordon.
